Dear Parishioners,

During this time of the year I can't help but to think of my family and of the many families that make up our Parish family. I realize families come in all shapes and sizes. Today the diversity in the family unit is more apparent. Not every family looks like the Cleavers (Reference to the Leave it to Beaver Show). Some families have struggles, and some don't have anyone to talk through their struggles with.

We should understand the importance of the family unit, and that Jesus chose to be born and grow up with the love and care of the Holy Family. Today, some people are hostile to faith, or organized religion. Families are the primary centers for living out a radiant faith. It is by the word and example of parents that children learn of our faith.

The challenge today is that some are single parents and must do this alone. Some families are blended following divorce. The economy has also added to the complexity of raising a family today. Some families have difficulty in coming together. The many temptations of the world lure people away from the great support of a family, and tempts people to find happiness in materialism, addictions, pride, and a sense that they don't need God, or one another. It does not take long for a person to realize the blessing of God and our brothers and sisters in Christ.

We the Catholic Church are one family. Through our Baptism we are adopted brothers and sisters in Christ. My prayer and hope is that our community of faith continues to have a sense of being a family. During my 14 years as a priest, I have learned first-hand the impact of family life. I beg all of you to pray for God's grace to strengthen the family unit. Also, I ask you to reach out to others that find this during the pandemic: when many things have been canceled, it makes it a little difficult for socialization. During the summer try to reach out to those around you, be kind and while social distancing, let's support our family and our "neighbor". Let us be there for one another. God bless all of His Children.

Fr. Gary
